Description	Justification
This project entails the construction of a new maintenance facility at the 1300 Bush Street location, which would increase the capacity for maintenance and allow additional articulated buses to be staged at Bush. The demolition of the existing building has already been initiated under an existing funded program. The initial implementation plans and layout for the building have also been completed along with the required environmental studies. The building would be designed and built using 'Green' initiatives.	The MTA utilized the current Main Shop to perform heavy repair work such as remove and replace engines or transmissions on MTA's fleet of 737 buses. The maintenance shop at Bush Street is 103 years old and is currently limited in its capacity to maintain the bus fleet due to space constraints and a limited number of bays, particularly in respect to the new hybrid buses and the articulated buses. This forces work to be completed in the yard at times in order to meet service requirements. Due to the design and age of the building, it is not possible to expand the shop in its current location.
