Transportation Improvement Program & Conformity Determination

The Transportation Improvement Program is a short range transportation program. Its main purpose is to identify projects which will require federal funding in the near future. It also includes an Air Quality "Conformity Determination," which looks at the impact of transportation projects on the region's air quality.

The revised document is available for review at the Regional Information Center (BMC) and online at www.baltometro.org.
