

PUBLIC INVOLVEMENT REPORT

MAY 2023

★ OPEN COMMENT PERIODS ★

TRANSPORTATION MATTERS. SO DOES YOUR VOICE. LET US KNOW WHAT YOU THINK ABOUT OUR PLANS FOR IMPROVING TRANSPORTATION IN THE BALTIMORE REGION

Over $74 billion in transportation investments are planned for the next 25+ years and the BRTB invites the public to weigh in on the draft long-range transportation plan, Resilience 2050: Adapting to the Challenges of Tomorrow, the short-range 2024-2027 Transportation Improvement Program, and the Air Quality Conformity Determination of the Plan and TIP. These plans are now available for public review and comment through Tuesday, June 20.

To dig into the plans, learn more about potential projects near you and share your thoughts, please go to publicinput.com/Resilience2050. Let us know what you think. Your voice matters.

JOIN US AT A PUBLIC MEETING

Anyone wishing to discuss the plans in more detail is welcome to join one of eight public meetings – seven in-person and one virtual – during the comment period. These will include guided overviews of the plans and planning processes, more details about local impacts and opportunities to ask questions and weigh in.

TRANSPORTATION ISSUES IN HISTORIC TOWN CENTERS – PHASE 2

Baltimore Metropolitan Council, on behalf of the Baltimore Regional Transportation Board, Howard County and Baltimore County, is conducting a multimodal transportation study for Ellicott City in Howard County and Oella in Baltimore County to address parking, wayfinding, and multimodal access.

A public meeting to present the recommendations was held on March 21 with a public comment period running from March 6 through April 5. Nearly 800 people visited the project website and over 40 people shared comments or completed a survey.
